A brief Project description follows:

The Andria Hunter Project included the reduction of a remnant highwall left from a previous reclamation project. In addition, the previous project had experienced areas of severe erosion and large area where acidic mine spoils had killed vegetation. The Andria Hunter project mitigated the highwall hazards, corrected the surface water/erosion problems, and addressed issues related to acid mine spoils. In the course of constructing this project a pair of prairie falcons nested at the Andria highwall. Rather than terminating the construction BRS negotiated with the Contractor to adjust the scheduling of work to accommodate the nesting raptors and complete the project on-time and within budget.
